A Complete Solution

The Activant Distribution Software Suite™, which includes Prophet 21® and Eclipse™, was developed to provide distributors with an enterprise-wide system to take their business to the next level of success. Activant remains dedicated to developing best-of-breed features and functionality to keep up with the rapidly changing needs of wholesale distributors.

Designed especially for distributors, the enterprise software solutions that comprise the Activant Distribution Suite include functionality specific to the unique business needs of distributors, enabling them to meet business demands quickly and easily. Functionality includes: order management, CRM, materials management, financial management, eCommerce, services, manufacturing, and business analytics.

R&D Investment

Activant invests a significant amount of its annual revenue in research and development. All of our research and development efforts are focused on delivering value to our customers.

Agile Development Practices

Continually working to meet distributors' changing needs, Activant employs an Agile development methodology called Scrum. The Scrum methodology deploys development practices that include customer input and lean processes for rapid development cycles of key functionality that ensure users have best-of-breed functionality at their fingertips.

Depth of Functionality

Activant's goal is to make its customers the standard in which all distribution organizations measure themselves against.

The Activant Distribution Suite is unique in that it combines the expertise and focus of a company dedicated to the distribution industry with the cutting-edge technology offered by world class technology organizations. Plus, Activant supplements all that with educational and support services that can be individualized to the user and made available on demand.

The Activant Wholesale Distribution Suite is scalable from small to large businesses and available as both Software as a Service (SaaS) and traditional deployment methods. That way, distributors of all sizes – from the two-person shop to the multi-national company – can compete on a level playing field taking advantage of all the functionality available.

Activant is developing features that streamline distributors' processes throughout their businesses. Distributors are trapped between the prices manufacturers charge for goods and their customers' demand that prices stay low. The only way to make both ends of the supply chain happy while still remaining profitable is by improving processes so employees spend less time on non-critical business functions and have more time to improve customer service, expand their geographic reach, and automate their internal processes to reduce costs.

Maximize Your Investment

Activant takes a comprehensive approach to serving distributors. With the rapid deployment of technology enhancements, Activant's support and education and consulting services help ensure that customers keep up with the advances that will perform best for their businesses.

If you want a highly scalable, powerful and customizable solution that is flexible and easy to navigate, the Activant Distribution Suite offers you the most advanced solution on the market today.
